U.S. SECURITY ASSOCIATES NAMED STRATEGIC SUPPLIER BY SANDIA NATIONAL LABS

Atlanta, Georgia, January 10, 2005—U.S. Security Associates (USA) has announced that it has been named a Strategic Supplier by Sandia National Laboratories. This is significant in that the Strategic Supplier level is the highest level of supplier for Sandia, a government-owned/contractor operated (GOCO) facility, that traces its roots to the development of the Manhattan Project in Los Alamos, New Mexico.

U.S. Security Associates has a long-standing relationship with Sandia, having provided very high-level security services for the organization's classified sites at Livermore, Ca. for 30 years, and the Tonapah Test Range in Nevada for 19 years.

Sandia continues to work in the development of science-based technologies that support the country's national security. Among its missions are ensuring the safety and support of our nation's nuclear weapons; reducing the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and the threat of nuclear accidents, military assessments and technology, enhancing the safety of energy and other critical infrastructures, and homeland security.

Founded in 1955 in Atlanta, Ga., U.S. Security Associates is the country's fifth largest uniformed security service company, with 18,000 employees in 103 cities. Some of its other clients include Abbott Laboratories, CB Richard Ellis, CVS, Federal Express, Georgia-Pacific, J.P. Morgan, Lockheed Martin, Merrill Lynch, Procter & Gamble, Union Pacific and UPS.
